THE PRACTICE OF ORGANIZATIONAL LEADERSHIP

Featuring

Andy Foerster

President

Liberty Energy Engagement

ABOUT THE CLASS

Running an organization requires both leading and managing. Truly successful organizations are headed by people who practice both arts in conjunction.

Andy draws on a variety of organizational leadership challenges both large and small to find the common threads whether you work in military, a non-profit, or very much for-profit company:

- It is always the people that keep an organization running, delight customers and that help you thrive
- Manage through system and processes that bring predictability, consistency, and sustainability
- Perfection is unattainable so run your organization like a practice, learning and growing every day
- There is no single, one-right-way to do something

While there is no single right way to lead people, there are certainly good practices and skills in working with a team. Come learn valuable insights that will help your approach to leading an organization told through enjoyable and relatable stories.
